boundary matching via optimal transportation abstract: a toy model for a boundary matching problem in computer vision is studied within the framework of the Monge-Kantorovich optimal transportation problem with a view to understand the underlying geometry of boundary matching. The questions addressed are the existence, uniqueness and geometric characterization of the optimal solutions.