IVAR EKELAND
Universite Paris-Dauphine

Mathematical problems arising from economics

I will give some instances of problems in economic theory with a rich mathematical content (contracts under asymmetric information, structure of cities). These problems will be developed in the later talks of the session.